

HEIR TO MILLIONS VOLUNTARILY WILL EARN OWN LIVING

Vincent Lamb, 20, Apprentices Self
At $18 A Week Until He Is Capable Of Handling
Fortune

GIRL WIFE IS INSPIRATION TO YOUT IN DETERMINATION

CHICAGO, Feb. 17—Because he believes no man has a right to his fortune before he has earned it, and—
Because his pretty, demure bride inspired him to this realization after two years of high living—

Vincent J. Lamb, 20-year-old heir to a $5,000,000 fortune, is working as an $18-a-week apprentice stock board market here. Until he has made $10,000 by sheer earning power, Lamb says, he will receive no benefit from his millions.

"My wife has brought me to the realization that only service counts," says Lamb. "No one should be given control of vast fortunes until the individual has proven his mettle.

Deputies of Power
"Money means power. It should be used for good. But by that I don't necessarily mean unintelligent philanthropy. Owners of large fortunes, to my mind are merely the deputies of power held temporarily in their custody. By human service they can turn that power into usefulness. That's what I'm trying to learn now—how to give service and take my place as one of the cogs in the machine."

Two years ago Lamb inherited $5,000,000 from an uncle, Patrick O'Connor, one time president of the Omaha Board of Trade. He lived high for two years until he met Miss Grace Ivers, daughter of a Denver banker.

Last October they were married. With it came Lamb's inspiration to earn. Miss Lamb was with him. She is helping him even now by earning her own living in a Los Angeles movie studio.

"I have given up all my cars and am living in a furnished room," says Lamb. "It costs me $4 a week. My food costs nearly $12. And the rest I save. It isn't much. But at least I'm earning it."

Fortune Tied Up
"That's all I have to live on, too, for I've induced my lawyers back home to tie up every cent of my inheritance so's that I can't lay my fingers on a single penny until after I've pulled down the $10,000 on which I've set my mark."

"Of course no one can keep a wife on $18 a week. So Grace will probably have to play on the cost until after I've started to earn more."

"But she's wonderful, I tell you. I'm doing this for her. I'm going to prove to her that I'm worthy of her love. I'm going to be a man."

PARK PROPOSITION WIDELY INDORSED

Frankfort Rotary Club Unanimously
Approves—Geological Survey
Will Promote

Middlesboro's delegates to Washington on the Cumberland Gap proposition were assured of the almost unanimous support of the Kentucky and Tennessee congressmen and already indications of the project's popularity are coming in from outside this section. The Frankfort Rotary Club unanimously indorses the park proposition Wednesday, and the Geological Survey has offered its services to promote the park. Other such indorsements are under way.

The following on this matter is from a Frankfort dispatch to the Courier-Journal:
"Services of the Geological Survey aiding promotion of the Cumberland Gap National Park project have been offered to Representative J. M. Robison by Willard Rouse Jilison, director. The Frankfort Rotary Club Wednesday took the initiative in indorsing the project. The proposed park embracing elevations of 3,000 feet, is in Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee. The Daughters of the American Revolution have erected a pyramid there to the memory of Daniel Boone."

ORGANIZING CHURCH BASKETBALL TEAMS

Meeting Monday Night to Discuss
Plans—Most Churches
Enthusiastic

Though organization of basketball teams in the various Sunday schools has not been completed, the work has been outlined and the teams will be organized as soon as the official rules are obtained. No definite action was taken at the committee meeting which was held in the office of Supt. J. W. Bradner last night but another meeting will, in all probability, be held there on Monday evening at which time it is hoped that the superintendent will have the rules so that the work may go on.

Most of the representatives of the Sunday schools are eager to get the work under way so that the teams may begin practice, though some of them say that it is too late in the season now to accomplish much.

H. R. Chandler, superintendent of the Christian church, says that organization of their team is held up only by lack of official rules. Warren P. Kash makes a similar report for the Presbyterian church. Dr. J. H. Brooks representing the Baptist church, says no plans have been made yet, but a team will probably be organized in the Baptist Sunday school. He said it was rather late in the season to begin. L. D. Rouser, superintendent of the M. E. Church South Sunday school, said that it is entirely too late in the season and that no attempts to organize a team would be made in his Sunday school. Rev. E. F. Burnside, pastor of the First M. E. Church, said he was in favor of the plan. There is talk, he said, of a girls' basketball team being organized in his church.

It is generally understood that members of the school team will not be eligible for membership on the Sunday school teams and that members of the latter teams must be regular attendants of Sunday school.

POLISHED CROOK PRISONER HERE

Lloyd Scott, Escaped Convict, Admits
27 Marriage with No
Dilators

Lloyd Scott, escaped convict, who was in Middlesboro today in the custody of Clay County officers, probably holds the national record for matrimonial ventures. He admitted to having been married twenty-seven times and to never having been divorced. He has been in every state in the union, around the world twice and was a soldier during the World War. He is handsome, educated, accomplished and is thirty-five years of age. The charges against him are so numerous that even he has forgotten some of them. They range from petty liquor law violations to serious statutory offenses. He is said to be wanted for murder, though he denies this.

He escaped from jail at Manchester several weeks ago, releasing another prisoner at the same time, J. A. Stalard, Clay county deputy sheriff, who has been on his trail since that time. He was captured at Tom's Creek, Wise county, Va., Friday. The prisoner was brought to Middlesboro this morning and lodged in the city jail. Joseph Lewis, jailer of Clay County, arrived here soon after and paid the deputy $150 in cash as a reward for capturing the man.

Owing to the fact that such a distinguished and accomplished crook was to be entertained during the day, special precautions were taken at the local jail to prevent possible escape. The two officers and their prisoner leave for Manchester tonight.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS RALLY TO END WARS

KNOXVILLE, Feb. 17—Gold Star mothers of America, who lost their sons in the World War, are rallying behind a movement to prevent another world conflict.

It is a plan for an international peace convention to be called by the United States.

Mrs. Ben S. Boyd of this city, mother of five World War veterans, one of whom died in the Argonne, is the organizer of this movement in Tennessee. She has already received endorsement of her plan from the Gold Star mothers of eastern Tennessee, and has begun to stir up interest toward the same end in all the other states.

"Enough hearts and homes have been broken," says Mrs. Boyd in her invitation to the country's Gold Star mothers. "We felt that it was a privilege to give our sons for a great cause. But if the peace they won is not lasting then we feel that our sacrifice was in vain."

"Our country should take the lead in removing the causes of war through a conference on reparations, war debts and disarmament."

NEW AUTO AGENCY AND GARAGE HERE

Gastineau & Co. Buy Corner Ames-bury and 19th Street—To Sell
Grays And Moons

W. A. Gastineau and Floyd Ball, local agents for the Gray and Moon automobiles, will establish a modern filling station and erect a modern garage and service station on the property at the northwest corner of Nineteenth street and Amesbury avenue which they recently bought from F. M. Gordon. The Gray car, a new product, has already made splendid records in speed and endurance. The business will be conducted under the firm name of W. A. Gastineau and Co.

The Gray car has the enviable record of making a transcontinental trip from San Francisco to New York, a total of 4819 miles, during which trip it consumed only 142.55 gallons of gasoline, showing an average mileage of per gallon 33.8 miles. The trip required twenty-six days, the journey being made in an ordinary five-passenger car taken from stock. The weight carried was equal to that of five passengers.

The car was given official recognition by Mayor Roll of San Francisco and the record made by this car has been attested by F. A. Crosemire of New York, chairman of the American Automobile Association contest board, who greeted the car upon its arrival in New York City October 10, 1922. Mayor Hylan of New York joined in the greeting. The experienced pilot who made the trip says that the Gray is the greatest car in the industry and can set records on any road. Dealers say that the Gray car is moderate in price, splendid in appearance and high in endurance, aside from being the most economical car on the market. Chas. G. Smyth was the broker who sold the Nineteenth street property for F. M. Gordon to the new purchasers.

M. H. S. WINNER OF BASKETBALL GAME

Defeat Barbourville 42 To 26 In Fast Match Here Last Night

Middlesboro High School defeated Barbourville High School 42 to 26 at basketball last night. The game was a fast one from start to finish and all the players merit commendation. The fact that the court in the Bonneway Inn ball room is twenty feet short somewhat hampers the game, but not as much as might be expected. This is the first game to be played in Middlesboro this year.

Middlesboro, on home grounds, started out with a good lead and kept it throughout the game. All of the boys did good work and, brown, as forward, playing his first game, won a good amount of applause. Sloan and McWilliams shot a great part of the goals, playing their usual good game.

The lineup follows:

SECOND CLEAN UP OF WASHINGTON UNDER ASHER

Former Louisville Revenue Officer
Makes Hard Times For Capital
Bootleggers Today—Investigates
Underworld Disguised

FIFTY RAIDS THIS MORN- ING, SIXTY FEBRUARY 2

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Police and prohibition enforcement officers today launched their second city wide liquor clean up in about two weeks. Armed with fifty warrants they began before noon a series of raids which reached into every section of the capital and which filled rapidly all detention space at several station houses as in a series of sixty raids conducted February 2. Evidence was given police and revenue agents by J. L. Asher, revenue agent from Louisville. Asher traveled the sounds of the capital underworld, this time disguised as a wandering minstrel, playing his way into the hearts of his victims on the violin. Police have feared for Asher's safety since the first raid and detailed Detective George Bauer to accompany him part of the time. The pair assumed the role of hucksters, making it convenient to take bottles and demijohns to headquarters. Other times they went about as organ grinders with monkeys.

A THOUGHT

Then beware lest thou forget the Lord, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.—Deut. 6:12.

If gratitude is due from children to their earthly parents, how much more is the gratitude of the great family due to our Father in heaven.—Iosua Ballou.

SUCCESS OF A CREDIT BUREAU

The Middlesboro Merchants' Association, recently reorganized, has for its purpose the promotion of all things that make for better business in Middlesboro. This includes, of course, encouragement of outside trade and co-operation of outlying sections with Middlesboro, advancement of constructive advertising for this city, and building up of local business along the most modern lines. But the first real business, as has already been outlined, is to establish a reliable credit bureau.

This is a reference list, kept in the files of the association's secretary, in which the name of every person who carries a charge account with a member of the association is listed, and his credit rating is deduced from the report of those merchants on how he pays his accounts. The files, to be authoritative, will be kept up-to-date by daily report from the members on new accounts and old accounts paid up.

The success of this credit bureau, lies in the cooperation of the association's members and the way in which they respond to the duties required of them. If they start out enthusiastically, making out their credit list and keeping up daily reports for about a month, then becoming lax, the organization will fail. If only about half of them respond the bureau will be a half-success, though, at that, much better than no bureau at all.

The most important factor in this matter, though, is that every merchant in the association ascertain the credit standing of every single individual before opening account with him. This is often difficult, especially in a small town where every one is more or less well-known. The customer might take offense at having his credit looked up, but as soon as he found that all the merchants were doing this as a matter of self-protection, he would see in this only a question of good business. All of the members must comply in this matter or the bureau is worthless.

The daily reports of accounts, the necessary investigation of new accounts and other duties of the association may look like too much trouble at first, but when the savings in bad accounts is totaled with the convenience of having bills paid promptly, the merchant will realize that it pays.

AMERICA AND GREAT BRITAIN

In speaking of the two countries and their relations to each other in terms of business, the balance of trade, the gain that comes with free commercial intercourse, is well enough. But, as remarked by a contemporary, those are mere symbols, "the inanimate representations of the animate." But the two nations speaking the same language, reading the same literature, have reached a point where we understand each other better. The situation is well expressed in this paragraph, copied from an editorial in the Cincinnati Times-Star:

The relations between the United States and Great Britain are today more cordial than ever before in the history of the two countries. We have seen more of each other, and the result has been increased understanding and friendliness. Great Britain has sent her representative men and women to us, and we have responded in kind. The conventional clasp of "hands across the sea" has become a hearty handshake. We might almost expand the metaphor. Today Uncle Sam and John Bull might be said to be slapping each other on the back.

Our forefathers in the last half of the seventeenth century rebelled against the acts of a certain King George, held they were by him being oppressed, that those in authority over them meant to make of the colonists the slaves of hard taskmasters. The fathers talked these things over to their children, the children grew up to manhood and womanhood and had children to whom they talked about the occurrences.

But at last the time has come when the people of the two countries are considering the folly of charging the sins of the fathers to the children of all succeeding generations. Our form of government is different from that of Great Britain, they over there have problems to solve different from those presented to the American people, they must proceed in their own way. But there remains no reason why the two countries should hold one another at arm's length. The two will lose nothing from becoming mutually friendly, and those of the two nations will have a better opinion of themselves by discussing for all future time petty quarrels with one another.—Journal and Tribune.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

The Magical Mushroom left Mix and Upper and went back to the Fairy Queen's Palace. While the twins continued their journey through the queer place.

So many things were upside down that it was enough to make one dizzy. The trees floated uphill, and even the hills were sometimes only holes in the ground. Fences stuck up in the air instead of staying properly on their sides as sensible fences do. The trees grew with their branches turned up and the apples and plums and pears of the orchard were square.

Ducks scratched for worms while chickens and turkeys swam on the ponds, horses were spreading and dripping milk out of the troughs of the pig-sties whilst the bogs were eating hay and pulling the plows in the fields.

Dogs barked and cats barked; birds flew around and rabbits flew; pictures were hung outside the houses while vines grew in the parlors; whales nibbled the grass by the roadside and cows swam far out to sea, smoke went down and rain fell up. Goodness alive, I get dizzy just talking about it, so you may know how the twins felt. Five and bye they came to an old man hobbling along the road in a pair of tight shoes, and groaning loudly.

"What's wrong?" asked Nick kindly. "I can help you?"

"Oh, yes you can but you can't," answered the old man "It's my shoe. Toes pinch."

"Why don't you take them off?" suggested Nancy.

"If I did I would never get there," said the old man, "I can only walk in shoes that hurt and I haven't a cent in the world, I am so poor, I have to go and get my thousand dollars out of the bank so I can buy me a loose pair of shoes. Then I can't walk so I can't spend it."

"Oh, aw!" cried Nancy. "I can't understand you at all."

"That's all right," said the old man. "Don't worry. You're a little queer in your head—that's all. After you live in Mix-Up Land awhile and become a Mix-Upper, you'll understand anything."

Away he hobbled, still groaning.

The day of march has come:

Henceforth in fields of conquest

Thy tents shall be our home

Through days of preparation

Thy grace has made us strong,

And now, O King Eternal,

We lift our battle song.

PRAYER: O God our Father, we thank thee for all the kindness and friendship that has come into our lives. Help us to be true to Christ in giving ourselves in freight service to all thy children in this day of the world's-erasing need. Save us from weakness in continuing struggles, from despondency in failures and disappointments. Create in us a trust in thy peace, in the power of faith and prayer and in the richness of thy love, through Jesus Christ, Amen.

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

"You aren't angry at me?" Kate's tone was low, controlled.

"No—I'm not angry at you," icily, "but I think I could strike you, choke you without the least feeling of guilt or regret."

"And just a few days ago you told me you loved me?" from Kate.

Latham blew a ring of smoke. He eyed Kate coolly through the haze. His face was quite expressionless.

"You fool!" he said at length under his breath.

Then he looked away and continued puffing his cigaret. There were dangerous lights in his eyes. His mouth curved cruelly.

Kate heated him for the moment. And feared him.

She never had seen him in such a mood. She found it hard to believe that the man across the table from her and the one who had made such ardent love to her a few weeks before were the same person.

She was puzzled. Should she stay and eat the food he had ordered for her? Or should she risk the scene that leaving might cause? She tried to move but seemed held in her chair by the very intensity of his gaze.

His elbow was on the table, his right hand toyed with his cigaret.

"You've made a fool of me." His voice was low and cold. "One minute you've had me half mad with jealousy of a man who doesn't exist, and hopeful the next."

"You've kept me living in a sort of semi-real state, a dream world part of the time and hell the rest of the time."

"And you've known it all along—that's the fiendish part of it! You've known what you were doing to me!"

The dangerous light in his eyes intensified. "You've been cheap and ordinary and you've tried to make me believe that you were a sort of superwoman."

When Latham finally stopped speaking, Kate, too, was silent. She watched his face, watched the nervous movement of his right hand which lay on the tablecloth.

"It seems rather foolish for a woman to defend herself, doesn't it?" she asked at length.

I'm fond of music and fond of books,
I find a pleasure, at times, in art,
I'm fond of mountains and running

Of country meadow and city mart;
The world is throbbing from margin to margin.

With human labor and love and glee,
But take it honestly, by and large,
The thing that interests me—is me!

You like to know how your neighbors
fare,

On how folks live in foreign land,
And how men battle with want and care.

You seek to study and understand
The ways of others, and find in this
A wider knowledge, a broader view,
But in the final analysis,

The thing that interests you—is You!

We may be humble, we may be meek,
Or egotistically inclined.

We may be selfish in what we seek,
Or seeking only to help our kind,
But Mr. Ego is still our boss.

And since undoubtedly this is thus,
With our confession we come across,
The thing that interests us—is Us!

FREEDOM AND LOVE

How delicious is the winning Of a kiss at love's beginning, When two mutual hearts are sighing For the knot there's no untying!

Yet remember, midst your wooing, Love has bliss, but love has ruin; Other smiles may make you fickle, Tears for other charms may rickle.

Love he come and Love he carries Just as fate of fancies carries; Longest stays when surest children; Laughs and flies when pressed and bidden.

Blind, the sea to slumber stilly, Blind the odor to the lily, Blind the aspen ne'er to quiver, Then blind Love to last forever.

Love's a fire that needs renewal Of fresh beauty for its fuel; Loves wings moult when caged and captured, Only free he soars enraptured.

Can you keep the bee from ranging, Or the ringdove's neck from changing? No! nor fettered Love from dying In the knot there's no untying.

TODAY'S RECIPES

QUEEN FRITTERS

By Bertha S. Shapleigh

To make queen fritters take:

One-quarter cup of butter, one-half cup each of boiling water and flour, one-eight teaspoon salt, two eggs, and fresh fat or lard.

In a sauce pan place the butter, boiling water and salt, and place on the stove; as soon as this reaches the boiling point stir in the flour all at once, and continue to stir until a thick batter forms which leaves the sides of the pan. Remove from stove, cool for a minute, then add eggs unbeaten, one at a time, beating through-ly between the addition of each egg. If this mixture is allowed to become very cold it will puff more when fried.

Drop from a tablespoon into hot fat, fry 1 minute, and drain thoroughly on paper.

To test the fat, drop a piece of bread into it, and count 60, or allow it to remain one minute. If it is a golden brown the fat is right, if too brown cool fat before dropping in the fritters.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

If you let a tomato stand in hot water it will peel more easily, but it will have to be chilled again if you are using it for a salad. A quicker and better way is to put it on a fork and hold it for a few seconds over a gas flame. This will loosen the skin without heating the vegetable.

POCKETS ALLOWED

Those who love pockets—and most women do—will be glad to know that many dresses have one or two on the skirt, sometimes of contrasting material, and sometimes of lace, embroidery, or brocade fabric. If there is but one pocket, it is always monogrammed.

LIFE INSURANCE IS REFUSED BOOTLEGGERS

By Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 17.—While the regularly constituted authorities are experiencing some difficulty in locating wealthy bootleggers, important life insurance interests say they are finding them with comparative ease and, because of the "moral hazard" involved, are refusing to insure their lives.

Men who a few years ago were glad to carry policies covering a few thousands, are now making application for policies ranging from $50,000 to $100,000, and in some instances in excess of the latter amount. Unless they are well known and have a high business standing they are carefully investigated, and if there is any suspicion as to the source of their income they are rejected, it matters not how good a physical risk the examining physicians decide they may be.

"BRING KNIGHTHOOD BACK" IS PROPOSED AS WORLD PANACEA

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Modern evils can be cured—

Only by getting back to the spirit of knightly chivalry which reigned in medieval times!

That's the belief of a group of young men and women here and they've formed an organization called "The Knights of the Holy Grail" to carry out their ideals.

The expressed purpose of the organization is to coax knightly chivalry back into flower.

Members are not required to wear cast-iron haberdashery, tilt a spear as but as a tree-trunk or ride about Chicago streets on the conventional milk-white speed.

But they are required to "practice chivalry, develop a spirit of honor and substitute virtue for primitive impulses and passions."

Double Standard Dragon

The chief dragon the organization will seek to impale on its good sword will be the double standard of morality. No more of that, say the "knights" and their ladies.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Kratzner is director of the organization.

"The spirit of knightly chivalry can save the world from much woe and misery," she says.

"Our organization is growing beyond measure."

"We plan to put manhood and womanhood on the same high moral standard."

"Women will assist in the movement by dropping their abandonment of precedent and cultivating moral restraint. Men must take the knightly oath to live pure lives and again to elevate woman to her former pedestal."

Would Save World

"Without virtuous womanhood respected by pure manhood there can be no salvation from the moral perils now engulfing the world."

The "Knights of the Holy Grail" are said to have been a powerful force behind the present investigation of commercialized vice in Chicago.

The commissioner of health requested Mrs. Kratzner to sit in at round-table discussions of the Chicago vice problem.

"Where a Warm Welcome Awaits You"

Telephone Records are Public Records

WHILE every detail of the Telephone Company's operations, which include revenue, expense, earnings and plans for the future are a matter of public record, we realize that many of our telephone users haven't the time or opportunity to examine these available records to learn the many things they wish to know and ought to know about the telephone business.

So we are bringing our books, records and plans to you in this form that you may know the telephone business as we feel you want to know it and as you should know it in order to be fully informed of the progress of your State and of this entire section.

During the year just past, the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company, operating in the four states of Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee, completed more construction work and installed more new telephones than ever before in its history.

To care for last year's growth Cumberland telephone workers in these States installed 53,465 telephones and discontinued 34,860. To meet this growth we installed additional central office equipment and outside plant costing $4,445,934.20, most of which was new money secured from investors.

During 1922 the company's gross operating revenue was $16,337,255, its operating expenses amounted to $14,474,814, and its net revenue was $1,862,441. This was a net return of 3.794 per cent on the total average investment during the year.

The importance, extent and value of the telephone service is indicated by the fact that there were approximately 793,597,000 local calls and 9,900,000 long distance calls during 1922.

The company now has 278,050 owned stations in the States referred to. It connects with approximately 84,771 stations of other companies and 20,721 telephones on farm homes.

There are more than 6,700 Cumberland telephone employees and the company's annual pay roll is more than $6,700,000.

The company owns 505 central offices, 857,268 miles of wire, 21,715 miles of pole line, and 809 miles of underground duct included in its local and toll plant.

This extensive property represents an investment of more than $50,308,091.

This approximate fifty and a quarter million dollars was our investment in Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee at the beginning of 1923, but the next five years of growth and development in this territory will be such as to cause this already large investment to grow rapidly year by year.

The year 1923 will be a year of expansion for the telephone industry, and if there are no unforeseen delays the unfilled demand for service should be practically eliminated.

In 1923 we must spend $5,741,400 for additions and extensions (exclusive of operating expenses). Approximately 52,777 new telephones will be installed and 34,854 removed, making a net gain of 17,923 telephones.

Plans for the 1923 work have already been made and the necessary capital arranged for, and if the manufacturers, as we expect, make deliveries of material as ordered, the work will progress according to schedule.

Our engineers estimate that during the next five years 279,409 new telephones will be installed by the company as a whole and 186,220 will be discontinued, leaving a net gain of 93,189 telephones during the period. To accomplish this will require gross additions to the plant costing $29,959,700.

To you as a telephone user this rapid growth and expansion of the Telephone System is of paramount importance, for the value to you of your telephone increases as the Telephone System as a whole expands.

In another advertisement we shall tell you our last year's accomplishments and our plans for this year and for the next five years.

This State's part in this telephone development is large and of importance to every individual and to the State at large. You will want to know about it.
